1	QA4 Intro: When you're asked a question about what you've read, think QA4! Question Answer Four. Look in the book or in your head. Think QA4! Question Answer Four. Use a strategy to get the answer right. Different reasoning is needed for each question type. To improve your studying and comprehension, think QA4! Think QA4! Think QA4! Yeah!
2	Voice-over Kid: I've just read a passage on The Rainy Day Game. This question is asking, "What happened when Martina and her mother got to the field?" I'm seeing evidence this is an "In the Book: Right There" question because it's asking what happened.
3	Sheriff Q Law: You're correct young feller. Howdy, I'm Sheriff Q Law. For this type of question, just stick to the facts. You'd best remember, "Right There" questions include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Who?</li> <li>• What?</li> <li>• Where? and</li> <li>• When?</li> </ul> Each of these questions lead you to wander back into the text to name, recall, list, show, identify or define. The words in the question hold the key to the answer.
4	Voice-over Kid: "What happened when Martina and her mother got to the field?" I know! "When Martina and her mother got to the field, it began to rain."
5	Sheriff Q Law: Remember to keep looking. The answer's RIGHT THERE!
