Setting
(overview)

Questions to Think and Talk About After Viewing the Video:

- Why is it important for authors to describe settings with such complete details?
- What should Ava consider when choosing a setting for her play?
- Compare and contrast different places where you may have lived or traveled as you think about the following:
 - What unique local customs did you have to follow while there?
 - How did the location impact what you could do there (sports, activities, etc.)?
 - What other differences did you notice (food, dialect or language, clothing)?
- If you could imagine living in any time period and in any location, what and where would it be? Why?
- Think about a favorite book you've read. What sensory details did the author use to draw you, as the reader, into the setting? What mood did these details help create?
